

Plan:

- What adventure would you like to lead for your Patrol? Are there any adventures that you are really looking forward to?
- What kinds of adventures do you have the most experience with? If you are a strong hiker, maybe you can lead a hiking trip. If you enjoy performing, maybe you can lead your Patrol in organizing a formal campfire or making a funny video.
- Who can you turn to for advice if this is your first time as an Adventure Leader?
- What tools will you use to stay organized?

Do:

- Step up and guide your Patrol through each step of the Plan-Do-Review cycle of a great adventure!

Review:

- What do you know now that you did not know before?
- How did the other Scouts respond to your leadership?
- What techniques did you use to encourage others?
- How did you stay organized?
- How did other Scouts support you as Adventure Leader?
- What problems did you encounter, and how did you overcome them?
- What would you do differently next time?

Safety Note:

As Adventure Leader, safety is your number-one priority. Make all of your decisions with safety in mind. Ask Scouts who have been Adventure Leaders before for some tips on how to keep your adventure as safe as possible.

Online Resources:

- What is leadership?
- The Essence of Leadership
- Why good leaders make you feel safe

Canadianpath.ca

Adventure Leader

RED COAT TRAIL Leadership

The Adventure:

The Troop Leader and Patrol Leaders are Scouts who make sure things run smoothly.

There are opportunities for other Scouts to take a leadership role, too!

Why not be an Adventure Leader for your Patrol's next outing? (Two Scouts can share this role and be co-Leaders.) The Adventure Leader makes sure that the Patrol's goals are met by heading up the Plan-Do-Review cycle. Guide the discussion so that the Patrol has a clear vision of what it wants to do and what tasks are required. Ask for volunteers to take on the jobs, and assign duties as fairly as you can if nobody steps up. Most importantly, keep the big picture in mind as the plan comes together and your Patrol shares its adventure. Is every task being taken care of?

When your adventure's over, lead your Patrol's review.

Plan:

- What adventure would you like to lead for your Patrol? Are there any adventures that you are really looking forward to?
- What kinds of adventures do you have the most experience with? If you are a strong hiker, maybe you can lead a hiking trip. If you enjoy performing, maybe you can lead your Patrol in organizing a formal campfire or making a funny video.
- Who can you turn to for advice if this is your first time as an Adventure Leader?
- What tools will you use to stay organized?

Do:

- Step up and guide your Patrol through each step of the Plan-Do-Review cycle of a great adventure!

Review:

- What do you know now that you did not know before?
- How did the other Scouts respond to your leadership?
- What techniques did you use to encourage others?
- How did you stay organized?
- How did other Scouts support you as Adventure Leader?
- What problems did you encounter, and how did you overcome them?
- What would you do differently next time?

Safety Note:

As Adventure Leader, safety is your number-one priority. Make all of your decisions with safety in mind. Ask Scouts who have been Adventure Leaders before for some tips on how to keep your adventure as safe as possible.

Online Resources:

- What is leadership?
- The Essence of Leadership
- Why good leaders make you feel safe

Canadianpath.ca

Adventure Leader

RED COAT TRAIL Leadership

The Adventure:

The Troop Leader and Patrol Leaders are Scouts who make sure things run smoothly.

There are opportunities for other Scouts to take a leadership role, too!

Why not be an Adventure Leader for your Patrol's next outing? (Two Scouts can share this role and be co-Leaders.) The Adventure Leader makes sure that the Patrol's goals are met by heading up the Plan-Do-Review cycle. Guide the discussion so that the Patrol has a clear vision of what it wants to do and what tasks are required. Ask for volunteers to take on the jobs, and assign duties as fairly as you can if nobody steps up. Most importantly, keep the big picture in mind as the plan comes together and your Patrol shares its adventure. Is every task being taken care of?

When your adventure's over, lead your Patrol's review.

