

Plan:

- Will this adventure be part of a larger outing, like a canoeing or hiking trip?
- When and where will you go? How can you know if there's some chance of finding gold where you intend to pan?
- What gear do you need?
- What skills should you have an understanding of?

Do:

- Get out and pan for gold!

Review:

- What do you know now that you did not know before?
- How would you describe your efforts and results?
- How did you feel before, during, and after the activity?
- How did the team get along?
- How can you build on what you've learned?
- What would you do differently next time?

Safety Note:

Remember that adventures along shorelines should be considered water activities. What do you need to remember to stay safe on adventures on, in or around water?

Online Resources:

- Gold Panning Instructions
- Gold panning
- How to Find the Gold Motherlode
- How to pan for gold

Canadianpath.ca

Pan for Gold

The Adventure:

At the end of the nineteenth century, gold was discovered in the Klondike region of the Yukon. Word spread quickly all around the world, and tens of thousands of prospectors hurried to the area hoping to strike it rich.

Most left disappointed. However, there are creeks and rivers across Canada where patient prospectors still have luck finding gold.

As a Patrol, learn to pan for gold. See how much you can collect!

It starts with Scouts.

Plan:

- Will this adventure be part of a larger outing, like a canoeing or hiking trip?
- When and where will you go? How can you know if there's some chance of finding gold where you intend to pan?
- What gear do you need?
- What skills should you have an understanding of?

Do:

- Get out and pan for gold!

Review:

- What do you know now that you did not know before?
- How would you describe your efforts and results?
- How did you feel before, during, and after the activity?
- How did the team get along?
- How can you build on what you've learned?
- What would you do differently next time?

Safety Note:

Remember that adventures along shorelines should be considered water activities. What do you need to remember to stay safe on adventures on, in or around water?

Online Resources:

- Gold Panning Instructions
- Gold panning
- How to Find the Gold Motherlode
- How to pan for gold

Canadianpath.ca

Pan for Gold

The Adventure:

At the end of the nineteenth century, gold was discovered in the Klondike region of the Yukon. Word spread quickly all around the world, and tens of thousands of prospectors hurried to the area hoping to strike it rich.

Most left disappointed. However, there are creeks and rivers across Canada where patient prospectors still have luck finding gold.

As a Patrol, learn to pan for gold. See how much you can collect!

It starts with Scouts.