

SC YLT Leadership Bingo

The Adventure:

Being a good leader means knowing what you are good at and believing in yourself. You may not know how much others think of you until there is a reason for them to tell you—which is just what this game is about!

In your Lair, create a Bingo card that includes 25 (5 X 5) ways that somebody can be a good leader. You can also write skills that a person might have that might make him or her a good leader for some adventures.

Your Lair might write “Friendly” or “Brave” as ways that somebody can be a good leader. Your Lair can also write “Runs Fast” and “Good at Knots” as skills that can help somebody to be a good leader.

When you have made up your Bingo cards, mingle with others in the group. For each box, find someone who is a good match. Have that person initial the box. Do not repeat initials (unless your group is smaller than 25 people—but try not to use anyone for more than three boxes on your Bingo card).

When your card is full, yell “Bingo!” and go have a seat. Everybody else should keep filling their Bingo cards, yelling “Bingo!” as they fill their cards.

Leadership: Becoming a Leader

Plan:

- Where will you share this adventure?
- How much time will you allow for this adventure?
- What materials will you need for this adventure?
- Who can you think of who are good leaders? What makes these people good leaders? What skills do they have in common?
- What might you use as a prize for the first person to yell “Bingo!”?

Do:

- Create your Leadership Bingo card.
- Let others know how they are good leaders by having them initial you Bingo card.

Review:

- What do you know now that you did not know before?
- How did it feel to have others ask you to sign their Bingo cards?
- How did it feel to ask others to sign your Bingo card?
- For what skills did people want your initials?
- What leadership skills others see in you came as a surprise?
- What would you do differently if you were to try this activity again?
